

Chester Webb Selected All-American

Profs Captain Is First GTC Star Awarded Honor

Chester Webb, Georgia Teachers' basketball team captain and record-setting basketball center, has been named to the 1955 Helms Foundation All-American team.

The announcement of the Elberton junior's selection on the first team was released this week by both the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics and the Helms Athletic Foundation of Los Angeles.

The 6-7 center holds every scoring record in school history, including his 792 points during this past season, his 47 points against Piedmont College on January 6, 1955, his 32 rebounds against University of Tampa on January 28, and his 1,657 career total over three seasons.

Although his best shot is the hook, delivered as far out as 25 feet, Webb has a very effective jump shot and a one-hand push which enables him to score consistently against a packed defense.

Webb is the first all-American in the history of Georgia Teachers College athletics, and the first in the state since Zippy Morocco of Georgia made some listings three years ago.

The special awards committee of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics selected Webb in a meeting in Kansas City last month following the national NAIA tournament.

The team was selected after careful study of recommendations submitted by individual college coaches and athletic directors of more than 450 institutions. This indicates that well over four thousand athletes were given consideration for this honor from the entire country.

Webb will be formally presented with an award certificate and a diamond-studded gold basketball by Dr. Zach S. Henderson, president of Georgia Teachers College, at the annual all-sport banquet on May 17.

In addition, a picture of Webb will be placed in the Sports Hall of Fame building at the Helms Athletic Foundation in Los Angeles.

Webb was coached at Elberton High School by Roger Parsons, a former star guard at GTC, now coaching at Laboratory High in Statesboro.

His coach at GTC, J. B. Searce Jr., calls Webb's selection, "One of the biggest thrills in my 16-year coaching career. We're looking forward to Chester having another great season next year."

Webb is majoring in physical education at Georgia Teachers, and wants to play either professional or industrial basketball after his graduation in 1956, and then he would like to give Georgia high school basketball coaching a serious try.

GTC Included In College Survey By Legislature

A State Legislative committee set up to make an extensive study of the state university system, of which Georgia Teachers College is a part, visited campus Tuesday, April 26.

Approximately fifteen representatives were in the group, all of which were members of the State Legislature. Included in the group were two representatives from Bulloch county, Francis Allen and Wiley Fordham.

The purpose of the committee's survey is to find out what the needs of the individual schools are as well as the problems being faced by these schools. The committee is also to make recommendations as to what can be done to solve these problems.

GTC vs. FSU This Weekend

The GTC baseball team will play Florida State University Friday and Saturday of this week. Florida State has one of the best teams that the Professors have played this season.

Music Students Present Recital

Miss Cathy Holt and Harriet Woodard will be presented in a joint piano-voice recital May 3 in the concert hall of the music building.

A varied program to please all music lovers has been planned for this recital, presented under the direction of the music faculty.

The program is scheduled to begin at 8:15, and the music department issues a cordial invitation to all students who wish to attend the recital. No admission price will be charged.

Grand March Initiates FBLA Preference Ball

The FBLA's much publicized Preference Party will begin promptly at 8 o'clock tomorrow night with the "Grand March," according to John Tootle, dance chairman.

The "Grand March" opening of festivities is the first of its kind on the GTC campus, and is one of the many unique touches given the party by the FBLA.

Tootle says that it is hoped that girls will call for their dates early, allowing ample time so that everyone may participate in the opening "Grand March." He stresses that this opening number doesn't require expert dancers, but that anyone who can walk can participate in the march.

"The Most Preferred Man at GTC" will be announced as the climax to the dance floorshow, and will escort Diana Bair, "Miss TC of 1955," after the announcement is made.

The party will include dancing on the tennis courts and games in the gym.

GTC Campus Improvements

By JIMMY SNOOKS

Has everyone noticed the changing landscape about the Collegeboro settlement recently? Surely you have.

Well, there hasn't been an earthmoving project or anything like that, but anyone, except perhaps a total stranger, cannot help but notice the change in scenery of the piece of forest land to the left of the driveway that enters the sweetheart campus from Highway 301. The underbrush, scrub trees, and also the injured diseased, crowded, and economically mature lumber producing pines have been cut.

This same operation has been going on behind the president's home, behind the fish pond, and in all of the forest area that belongs to the campus. A bulldozer has been at work moving stumps and sort of leveling things here and there. All of the cut treetops and underbrush will be hauled off to some secluded spot.

The administration hopes that the money received from the sale of the wood products, lumber and pulpwood, will cover the cost of clearing and beautifying.

The other improvements going on about the campus are what the maintenance department calls routine improvements. Anderson Hall is being rewired and repainted, work will begin this week on the painting of the Lab School auditorium, fire doors are still being installed in the buildings of the campus and some of the restrooms are being painted.

Work on the new physical education building is progressing slowly. The hardwood floor has been installed, but we lack yet the seats, a septic tank, the furniture, some painting, and many "odd and end" jobs. One optimistic source predicts that we will be in that building by September at the latest. Well we hope so.

While we are on this subject of the physical education plant I want to bring your attention to the fact that the "S" in "physical" on the front of the building is upside down.

Well that's about all that is going on in the improvement line right now. We just wanted your attention to the fact that the administration is not letting the campus "run down."

Big Sister Club Meeting Called

Plans are in the making for a Big Sister organization for next year. Dean Helen Duncan is trying to get some interest in this activity now so that by next year the plans will be completed and the organization ready to function by the opening of the fall quarter.

The function of this club will be for the girls in the upper classes to be a big sister to the girls in the freshmen class. Each girl will have one freshman girl for whom she will be responsible to help her become adjusted to college life.

Dean Duncan would like to see all the girls who are interested in this type of program Tuesday, May 3, at 10 o'clock so that she can explain the program more fully.

The Remaining Pages

By CAROLYN PIERCE

"The more we live, more brief appear our life's succeeding pages."

How true is the above quotation and yet, how little thought is given to it.

Most of us go our ways, unmindful of the pages we are writing and clipping into the notebook's of our lives. Never do we give a serious thought to how we spend our time. Each day goes by and the value we may have received is unheeded as we pass on to the next, it being unplanned, not even looked forward to, unless we can sleep late, usually with a dread of another day of classes and an anxiety for it to end.

How can we be so nonchalant about the gift of life? How can we have such attitudes of indifference? Can it be because we honestly don't care? I hardly think so. If it were, we wouldn't be here, and then again, do we really know why we're here to begin with? There is so much to be learned and so little time in which to learn, not only in classes, but in all phases of life at college.

There's a chance to learn subject matter, of course, and we complain about having to study, the main objective in coming to college. We take so much for granted when there are so many who would give all they have just for our chances and opportunities. Those people would be anxious and ready to learn. Are we?

Then, there's that big chance of learning how to get along with people. We come in contact with hundreds of individuals, each with his own characteristics, and we let them pass unnoticed, not taking time to realize that when we shoulder our own responsibilities, we'll be so thankful for all the learning experiences in being with people we will have had, if we but utilize them.

Learning more about the "Way of Life" is another of our many opportunities. The few short minutes at "Twilight" could help us so much if we would only go and hear, but we pass it up. On Sunday, the churches open their doors and invite us to enter, listen, and commune with God in His house, but so few bother to do so. We take Sunday at its literal meaning, a day of rest, and we do nothing but.

Everyone has heard of a "Land of Beginning Again." That land is not just an idea, and is not meant for those who do not care to find it, although it remains in clear view. In order to enter into that "land," we must realize the degree of our carelessness; we must make the most of every minute of every day, taking advantage of every opportunity that comes our way.

"Time Waits for No One" is the title of a song, but it could well be the title of volumes. What will be written on the remaining pages of our lives?

What Makes GTC Click

Suppose one were to lose himself in reflective thought and ask the question: "What makes Georgia Teachers College 'click'?" What do you think the correct and complete response to this question would be?

Many colleges seem to be known for the great number of clubs and activities on their campus. In fact, most students in choosing a college let this be a great influence on their choice. This is, in part, an accurate consideration to be given in testing the true worth of a college.

The so-called "clicking" or coordination of the different phases of activities and organizations on a college campus is a direct result of the quality and worth of the individual students as well as the aggregate of the student body. A college may have a great number of clubs, organizations, activities, etc., but without a nucleus of mature, dependable students these things have little more than just a passive, unaccomplishing existence.

Thus, essentially, the extent of the worth of a college may be found in the ingenuity and worth of the individual student. This is what makes a college "click." Any improvement must have its beginning in the student.

Congratulations!

The climax of three years of great basketball play came this week when Chester Webb, captain and center of the GTC basketball team, was named to the Helms Foundation all-American team.

This honor is the hallmark of achievement among small college basketball players and will bring to both Chester and GTC a lot of well-deserved recognition.

Since coming to GTC Chester has practically rewritten every scoring record in the books.

The GEORGE-ANNE staff would like to give congratulations to Chester on receiving this honor and to wish him luck in breaking his own records during his remaining year of play.

Needed Improvement

The April 22 issue of the GEORGE-ANNE carried a story concerning certain recommendations made by the Student Council. Listed among these recommendations was a suggestion that the wall of the book store side of the Blue Tide be extended several feet.

The great need of this extension is evidenced many times in the course of almost every day. During the 10 a. m. to 10:30 a. m. break in classes it is all but impossible to be waited on, not to mention having a place to sit down, talk, and relax. When one stops to think and realizes that this small place is patronized by over six hundred people they see how inadequate it really is.

Also included in the recommendation was that a means of music be provided also, since there is no other place on campus where this is possible.

The GEORGE-ANNE staff feels that this is an urgent matter and should be given immediate attention.

GTC Raps Oglethorpe; Defeated By Mercer

Georgia Teachers College defeated Oglethorpe University last Thursday, 22 to 2, in a Georgia Intercollegiate Conference game. The game was called at the end of seven innings by agreement.

Vondall Hall pitched a neat three-hitter for his third victory of the year. He struck out eight and walked three. That gives Hall a record of three victories and one loss.

The Professors had 18 hits, including two doubles and five home runs. Preston Sizemore had four hits in four times at bat, including a home run. Dave Esmonde had four for five, including two home runs and eight runs batted in. Emory Clements had three hits in five times at bat. Kelly Powell hit his sixth homer of the year and Bo Warren also hit for the circuit for GTC.

MERCER

Shortstop Tommy Mixon's bad-hop home run with two out in the last half of the eighth snapped a 10-game Georgia Teachers Winning streak and gave Mercer a 2-1 win in Macon Tuesday.

The Bears' Bud Culbreth and the Profs' Roy Alewine were locked up in a tight pitching duel when Mixon rapped a solid single to right that took a crazy bounce over rightfielder

Dave Esmonde's shoulder and went for a homer on the fenceless field.

GTC scored in their half of the second when Kelly Powell walked, stole second, and came home when centerfielder Bo Warren stroked a single to left.

The bears evened it up in the last of the second on a single by Wilkes, a throwing error, and a single by Harrelson.

The Profs outhit Mercer, 9 to 6, and missed several golden scoring opportunities, the best finding Preston Sizemore opening the game with a triple and dying there.

Sizemore singled with two out in the ninth, but Jimmy Ford skied to short to end the game. GTC plays Florida state on the home field Friday and Saturday.

New Gymnasium Near Completion

According to Coach J. B. Searce, no date can be set, as yet, for completion of the new TC gymnasium.

Although the major work is near completion there still remains many minor details to be accomplished before the gym can be utilized.

The tile has to be installed, floors finished, a septic tank, and seats installed and after all this has been done the whole building must be inspected by local inspectors.

After local authorities have given their final approval it must be inspected by state officials. After any necessary alterations required by the state

Tennis Tourney Now Underway

In each case the winners will be the best two out of three sets. The tourney is to be a single elimination type affair. Four entries drew byes in the mens' singles.

The large number of entries submitted for both the mens' singles and men's double made

GTC Leading GIC Standings

The Georgia Teachers College Professors dominate the Georgia Intercollegiate Conference batting and pitching averages through the first four weeks of play.

GTC's outfielder, Dave Esmonde of Mendon, Ohio leads all batters with .424 mark.

The Professors also lead in team batting with a .362 team average.

Kelly Powell, GTC's third baseman, places the league with four home runs and 38 total bases, and Esmonde's 18 RBI's leads that department. Catcher Jimmy Ford of GTC has the most doubles, 6, and teammate Bo Warren leads with his three triples.

The Professors' Clyde Little and Jack Maxwell, both senior righthanders, have three wins apiece to pace the loop's hurlers. Little has the most strikeouts, 25.

Only two conference games are scheduled for this week, Piedmont at North Georgia, on Wednesday, and then the teams reversed sites on Thursday.

The tournament matches have no certain time to be played, but deadlines for each round have been set which should bring the tourney to a close by May 14.

Seniors Defeat League Leaders

The league-leading sophomores are living up to their favored role in the intramural softball league until the third place seniors set them back with a 10 to 1 defeat. The defeat gave the second place juniors a change for a league tie.

Tom Perry gave up only 5 hits and allowed the sophomores only one run as he became the first pitcher to defeat the all-winning sophomore aggregation.

"Sonny" Stephens suffered his first defeat after winning three straight games. Stephens has been helped along to his three victories by the fine hitting of Jack Upchurch and Bub Denham, who are hitting at .538 and .417 clips respectively.

The juniors, who are closing in on the leaders for first place, have won two games and lost one. Bob Cardell has pitched the juniors to both victories while Alton Dews is leading at the plate for the juniors with a torrid .666 average.

In third place are the seniors with two victories against a like number of defeats. Tom Perry leads senior stick wielders with a .500 average.

Currently in the cellar are the freshmen in spite of a .600 batting average on the part of Lou Cunningham. The frosh have yet to win, while losing three contests.

A full schedule of intramural softball activity is on tap for the next few weeks. A final series will be played between the league winning team and the varsity baseball team.

Campus Column

By JOANNE HILL

Some of the "old" things around campus have recently taken on a "new" look. I'm not referring to suntans or hair styles either. I'm speaking of the new paint job Anderson Hall has received and the new covers that have been put on the furniture in the parlors of some of the dormitories. And have you noticed that fancy slip-cover material that the chairs are covered in? Personally, I think it is much prettier than the previous material. As some would say, "It's OK."

I discovered last Saturday that one of the "stray-hounds" that has established residence on campus has a real-honest-to-goodness name. The best I remember, it was "Antigone." If you haven't taken English 205 you probably don't appreciate the true value of the name. But if you're taking the course or intend to take it, here's some good advice: when your professor asks you to it's one of the dogs on campus. I don't think identify "Antigone," don't say you could get away with it. I almost forgot to congratulate our "Antigone." She became a mother last week.

In case you're wondering who the brown and cream car that has been parked by the store belongs to, it's Margie's! Nice looking automobile—don't you think?

Whoops! I almost made a terrible mistake. I'm sorry I waited so long to get it in, Chester, but CONGRATULATIONS on making All-American.

Congratulations, also, are extended to Mr. Hooley and Mr. Broucek for their excellent performance on Wednesday night. If you didn't attend that concert, you really missed a treat.

Late Date was unusually good Tuesday night. If you listened, I know I don't have to tell you why, but in case you missed the program, it was exceptionally good because the Four-Flats sang during the program. The Four Flats—Tab Smith, Archie McAfee, Charlie Joe Hollingsworth, and Jimmy Johnson made up a unique barbershop quartet. And they are good! I didn't hear anything flat about their singing.

Donna Jo Livingston, a student of last year, spoke the marriage vows with Mitchell Marvomat on April 16.

Last Saturday Tybee Beach was "Stomping" grounds for a large number of GTC students.

Among them were Joan Hurst, Carlene Usry, Marilyn Coons, Shirley Akins, Beth Bannister, Shirley Maxwell, and Sandra Austin.

I was informed by the Preference Committee that the girls are supposed to foot all the bills Saturday night. You know, the more I think about the thing, the less sure I am that Billy's going to have a date.

Attention girls. Don't forget the Big Sister meeting next Tuesday.

With the thought of all the fun I hope you have at the Preference Ball and with the thought of my broke pocket-book, I'm obliged to say—so long!

Opinion Poll

Cheating in the classrooms seems to be a growing menace at GTC. Can you offer a possible solution to this problem?

Clarence Miller — "I don't think it can be stopped. I think it could be remedied by education and psychology, that is, making the individual aware of the effects of cheating and why students cheat. Police tactics honor system. If the student body did not accept it as being all right, then it would stop."

Shirley Jones—"If students could be convinced it doesn't help them in the long run, then it would be stopped."

Charles Dill—"I think most all cheating could be cut out by having another evaluation system rather than tests. Because tests prompt a student to compare himself with other people. Only through the professors personal interviews and observations should a grade be assigned. In this way you would not be competing for a grade." Keith Turner—"If a person knew what he was here for, he wouldn't have to cheat. The sooner a person realizes the purpose of school, the quicker the cheating will stop."

Gene Stallard—"In reality the student himself is being cheated. 'Crime Does Not Pay,' but so few students recognize this fact."

Darrell Smith—"By giving more oral tests, I believe this and only this is the way to prevent cheating."

Edward Abercrombie — "Is there a method to prevent cheating? The nature of the student's professor and subjects makes this a near impossibility. Maturity and experience might help."

Don King—"I believe that cheating actually cannot be stopped. Those who intend to cheat can always find some method regardless of what anyone could possibly do."

Joy Hatcher—"Many plans to stop cheating among students have failed because the appeals have not approached the matter in a mature aspect. The common sense solution would be to discuss the matter with students, pointing out not only the disadvantages, but also the advantages."

Cay Fordham—"The only solution I can think of is to give a separate test to each student, on different days. This is a little extreme, but it seems that extreme measures are needed."
